I. DISTINGUISHED SERVICE CROSS. By direction of the President, under the provisions of the Act of Congress, approved 25 July 1963, the Distinguished Service Cross for extraordinary heroism in action against an enemy is awarded posthumously to:

Private First Class Thomas H. Maynard, RA19286737, United States Army, distinguished himself by extraordinary heroism on 6 November 1965 while serving as a ammunition bearer to a unit on a search and destroy operation in the vicinity of Plei Me, Republic of Vietnam. At approximately 1330 hours, Private Maynard's unit came under intense small arms and automatic weapons fire from well camouflaged Viet Cong positions. The insurgents had excellent observation and fields of fire which made it difficult to advance and halted the friendly assault. During the course of action, ammunition was called for by the forward elements of the platoon. With complete disregard for his personal safety while exposed to the intense hostile fire, Private Maynard and another soldier advanced to approximately twenty meters toward the lead elements of the platoon, with the critically needed ammunition and were both immediately wounded. While attempting to locate the Viet Cong positions, a grenade had landed between Private Maynard and the other soldier. Private Maynard, although wounded himself and with complete disregard for his personal safety, pushed his comrade aside and threw himself upon the grenade, smothering the blast with his body. His intentional and selfless act undoubtedly saved the life of his fellow soldier and served as an inspiration to the other members of his unit. Private Maynard's unimpeachable valor and extraordinary heroism in close combat against hostile forces were in keeping with the highest traditions of the military service and reflect great credit upon himself, his unit, and the United States Army.

VI. DISTINGUISHED FLYING CROSS. By direction of the President, under the provisions of the Act of Congress, approved 2 July 1926, a Distinguished Flying Cross for heroism while participating in aerial flight is awarded posthumously by the Department of the Army to:

Major Larry A. Thorne, (then Captain) Infantry, United States Army, for heroism against a hostile force while participating in aerial flight on 18 October 1965 in the Republic of Vietnam. Major Thorne was operations officer responsible for launching a small, combined reconnaissance patrol on an extremely hazardous mission into a suspected Viet Cong stronghold. Due to the extreme hazards attending this mission, including weather and enemy action, Major Thorne volunteered to accompany the mission aircraft during the introduction of the patrol in place of the assigned individual. After delivering the patrol to the landing zone, Major Thorne remained with one aircraft in the immediate area to receive an initial report from the patrol on the ground. This report was mandatory since only the vaguest information was available about enemy disposition near the landing zone. If the patrol were immediately confronted by a superior force, Major Thorne would land and extricate the patrol under fire. This was done with total disregard for the inherent dangers and with selfless concern for the ground forces. In so doing, he exposed himself to extreme personal danger which ultimately led to his disappearance and the loss of his aircraft. He had, however, guaranteed the safe introduction of the patrol into the area, the successful accomplishment of the mission and had positioned himself to react to any immediate calls for assistance from the patrol. Due to Major Thorne's efforts, the mission was accomplished successfully and contributed significantly to the overall mission of interdicting Viet Cong activities within the area. Major Thorne's actions were in keeping with the highest traditions of the military service, and reflect great credit upon himself and the United States Army.

VII--SOLDIER'S MEDAL. By direction of the President, under the provisions of the Act of Congress, approved 2 July 1926, a Soldier's Medal for heroism not involving actual conflict with an enemy is awarded posthumously, to:

Sergeant Nguyen Van Hiep, , Vietnamese Army, Fluvial Patrol Training Center, An Khanh Post, distinguished himself by heroic actions not involving hostile forces, during the early morning hours of 17 June 1966. While working as a member of a joint United States and Vietnamese boat patrol on the Saigon River, information was received of a suspected larceny from a barge anchored in the river. Upon proceeding to the location of the barge, the American member of the patrol, while attempting to secure the patrol boat to the barge, lost his balance and fell into the water. With utter disregard for his own personal safety and intent upon saving the life of his fellow patrolman, Sergeant Hiep dove into the water. While attempting to assist his comrade at the same time fight the overpowering currents, he was swept away and subsequently drowned. Although his rescue attempts were unsuccessful, Sergeant Hiep's heroic act stands as a memorial to his person and will remain as an example of ultimate comradeship and an expression of the true spirit of union, self sacrifice, and togetherness exhibited daily among the men of both the Vietnamese and United States armies. Sergeant Hiep, in making the supreme sacrifice, brought credit upon himself, his organization and the Vietnamese Army.

VIII--SOLDIER'S MEDAL. 1. By direction of the President, under the provisions of the Act of Congress, approved 2 July 1926, a Soldier's Medal for heroism not involving actual conflict with an enemy is awarded to:

Specialist Four Karl J. Cengr, , United States Army, distinguished himself by heroism on 31 March 1966, at St. Robert, Missouri, while serving as a member of the 158th Quartermaster Company (Petroleum Depot), Fort Leonard Wood, Missouri. While awaiting entry into the southbound lane of a highway, Specialist Cengr observed an airplane making a landing approach to this southbound lane. Before landing the aircraft struck a high voltage power line, caught fire, hit the rear end of an automobile and exploded. Upon seeing the airplane crash and burn and knowing that it might disintegrate at any moment, Specialist Cengr, with complete disregard for his own personal safety, saved the life of the unconscious pilot by removing him from the burning cockpit. After carrying the pilot a safe distance from the aircraft, Specialist Cengr noticed that a group of spectators and some automobiles were dangerously close to the accident scene. He ran back into the danger area, dispersed the people and automobiles and established a safe perimeter until relieved by civilian and military authorities. Specialist Cengr's heroic action is in the highest traditions of the United States Army and reflects great credit upon himself and the military service.

Sergeant Samuel Frierson, , United States Air Force, for an outstanding act of courage on 21 November 1966. Sergeant Frierson displayed perseverance, courage, and complete disregard for his own safety by entering a burning set of family quarters at Fort Dix, New Jersey, and removing a child to safety from a smoke and flame filled living room. Upon learning that five other children were playing in an upper floor bedroom, he courageously attempted to reenter the burning building to remove the trapped children but was unable to do so due to the conflagration. Continuing his valiant actions and diligent efforts, Sergeant Frierson immediately notified the Fort Dix Fire Department of the situation, and again made a determined effort to gain entry into the building to effect the rescue of the children remaining in the building. Through Sergeant Frierson's courageous efforts, the death of one child and possibly that of five other children was prevented. His bravery, valor and determination won for him the respect and admiration of a grateful Fort Dix community, for the exemplary way in which he conducted himself on that nearly tragic day. Sergeant Frierson's heroic conduct is in keeping with the highest traditions of the United States Air Force, and reflects great credit upon himself and the military service.

Private Francois X. Leal, , United States Army, Fort Polk, Louisiana, a member of Company B, 1st Battalion, 1st Training Brigade, distinguished himself on 13 March 1967 by saving the lives of Sergeant Robert Jackson, and Private Thomas M. Meyer. While engaged in training on the live hand grenade range, Fort Polk, Louisiana, Private Leal picked up a live hand grenade and threw it down range after it had been thrown into his bay by a fellow trainee. By his alertness and courage Private Leal reflects great credit upon himself, his unit, and the United States Army. (This award supersedes award of the Army Commendation Medal with "V" device for heroism on 13 March 1967 as announced in General Orders Number 66, Headquarters, Fort Polk, Fort Polk, Louisiana, dated 27 March 1967.)

Specialist Four Harold F. Maness, , United States Army, who distinguished himself by heroism while involved in an incident caused by the explosion and subsequent burning of an M-8 cargo carrier, which was being prepared to be sent to the Yukon Command Maneuver Area on 18 March 1967. After the explosion, Specialist Maness tripped one of his comrades who was running from the inferno with his clothes on fire, causing him to roll in the snow and put out the fire. Continuing to risk his life, Specialist Maness pulled another stricken comrade from the area of the fire. He then returned to the area with a fire hose and proceeded to wet down an M-8 wrecker to keep it from burning. At this time flames were shooting twenty feet in the air and the fire caused intense heat. Without regard to his own safety, he drove the wrecker from the area of the fire and saved it from destruction. Specialist Maness' brave action resulted in the saving of two lives and an expensive piece of equipment. Specialist Maness' heroic conduct, prompt action and deep concern for others are in the highest traditions of the United States Army and reflect great credit upon himself and the military service.

Specialist Six John W. Racer, , United States Army Field Band, who distinguished himself by heroism on 31 March 1967 at the Holiday Inn, Panama City, Florida. A fire had enveloped one of the rooms and trapped its occupant, a Mrs. Darryl Cope of Panama City. Specialist Racer upon noticing smoke seeping over the door of the room began pounding on it but received no response. Then Specialist Racer pounded on the door of the adjoining room in order to arouse its occupants. He then ran across the parking lot to the Motel office, alerted the night clerk, and had him return with them bringing his master key. When the master key proved useless, due to the fact the night lock was secured by the occupant, Specialist Racer again pounded on the door. He ran back to the office and assured notification of both the fire department and the ambulance/rescue squad. Specialist Racer was at the door when another member of the Field Band crawled back out of the room after his first attempt at rescuing the occupant proved fruitless. Specialist Racer, grabbed one end of the blanket offered him by the other rescuer and the two of them crawled into the room. Specialist Racer grabbed the woman's wrists and dragging her, backed out of the room with his fellow rescuer leading the way. Therefore, the occupant's life was saved. By Specialist Racer's quick reaction to the situation, further damage to life and property was avoided. Specialist Racer's heroic action reflects the highest credit upon himself and the United States Army.

Specialist Four Hubert R. Rockey, , United States Army. Specialist Rockey, Headquarters and Service Company, United States Army Aviation Center Troop Brigade (Provisional), Fort Rucker, Alabama, distinguished himself by exposing himself to possible grave danger in rescuing a fellow soldier on 21 January 1967. While watching Specialist David Sunderland flying a model airplane, he saw the plane come in contact with high voltage wires. The control lines of the plane conducted the electricity to Specialist Sunderland, knocking him unconscious and causing his clothing to burst into flames. With complete disregard for his personal safety, Specialist Rockey, lifted the unconscious man from the wires by his belt and rolled him on the ground to extinguish the flames. He then ran to a nearby house and called for an ambulance. Returning to the scene, he found the victim was conscious and had been wrapped in a blanket. He then went to meet the ambulance, guiding it around the live wires. Specialist Rockey's prompt action saved the victim from further injury and probable loss of his life. His quick thinking, outstanding courage, and willingness to sacrifice his own life for another, reflects great credit upon himself and the military service.

Private Gregory V. Schauer, , United States Army, Company B, 5th Battalion, 31st Infantry, 197th Infantry Brigade, United States Army, is cited for the award of the Soldier's Medal for heroism. In the vicinity of Kelley Hill, Fort Benning, Georgia, on 13 January 1967, Private Schauer, a member of a rifle squad of the Third Platoon, was on a patrolling problem. The squad was moving along a stream toward the objective when the squad leader, Sergeant Sidney E. Cook, stepped into a quicksand pit. As the Sergeant began to sink slowly into the quicksand, members of the squad rapidly searched the area for a long pole or other suitable items to assist the Sergeant in extricating himself from the quicksand. Seeing that the Sergeant was in up to his armpits and still sinking, and knowing that death could come by suffocation, Private Schauer, without regard to his own personal safety, jumped into the quicksand pit and extended his weapon to Sergeant Cook. Sergeant Cook grasped the weapon and pulled himself up, eventually freeing his body from the mire. By the time that Sergeant Cook was freed, Private Schauer was himself in the quicksand above his waistline, but was pulled free through his squad's teamwork. The prompt action displayed by Private Schauer in this emergency aided in saving Sergeant Cook from death by suffocation. His unselfish and courageous efforts are worthy of emulation and reflect distinct credit upon himself and the military service.

Private Milton H. Smith, , United States Army, on 24 January 1967, at or about 0630 hours, exhibited bravery and courage in rescuing a fellow soldier while paying no attention to the dangers on his life. A soldier attempting to cross a river ford, had his vehicle drowned out and stalled in the midst of a four foot raging current. Fireman Smith, with life line attached, physically walked the fifty yards to the stranded soldier. Smith then insured the balance of the rescue part that a life line was attached to the stranded soldier. The soldier was coaxed by Private Smith to jump and then was pulled to safety. It was at this time that the line to Smith was stachened and Smith was pulled underwater by the raging current. Smith then had to swim to shore to save his life and come aground well downstream of the rescue party. Within seconds after both men were safely ashore, the vehicle, on top of which the stranded soldier was sitting, was swept downstream by the heavy current. Had Smith not voluntarily undertaken such a hazardous task, the stranded soldier would have been swept downstream and would have perished.

(This award supersedes the Army Commendation Medal awarded to Private Milton H. Smith for heroism 24 January 1967 as announced in General Orders Number 15, Headquarters United States Army Training Center, Infantry and Fort Ord, California, dated 17 February 1967.)

Specialist Dale W. Stewart, , United States Army Field Band, who distinguished himself by heroism on 31 March 1967 at the Holiday Inn, Panama City, Florida. A fire had enveloped one of the rooms and trapped Mrs. Darryl Cope of Panama City. Specialist Stewart after seeing the room filled with dense smoke and flames and hearing a woman's moaning and groaning, ran into his room, grabbed a blanket, and returned to the burning room. As the inside was pitch black, the light switch was tried in order to afford some visibility, but it did not work. Specialist Stewart put the blanket over his face and crawled on hands and knees. Once inside, he was aware that the moaning was not coming from the area of the bed, but from further back. He crawled on through the smoke and intense 350° heat and found the woman lying face down in the doorway of the bathroom. He spoke to her and asked her to get up on her hands and knees and crawl out with him. She acknowledged, but in her semi-conscious condition, could not move. Specialist Stewart grabbed the woman's hands and pulled her as far as the rug, but her deadweight was too much for him and he crawled back out of the room. Another Field Band member was at the door. Specialist Stewart gave him one end of the blanket and the two of them crawled into the room. The other bandsman grabbed her wrists, and, dragging her, backed out of the room with Specialist Stewart leading the way to safety. The life of the occupant was saved by his quick response to the emergency, and further danger to the building and its occupants was prevented. Through heroic efforts, Specialist Stewart's actions have brought honor to both himself and the United States Army.

Captain Richard L. Treas, , Infantry, United States Army, on December 1966, in Chun Chon, Korea distinguished himself through an act of heroism voluntarily risking his life in saving a nine year old Korean boy from drowning in the ice swollen, turbulent So Yang river. While driving across the So Yang river bridge, at the northern edge of the city of Chun Chon, Captain Treas noticed an excited crowd of people gathering along the bank of the river on the south side of the bridge. Closer observation revealed the object of excitement to be a small Korean child who had broken through the ice incrustation and fallen into the river, clinging for life to a piece of floating ice. Not knowing the thickness of the ice or the depth of the river or the swift-ness of its current and notwithstanding the fact that he, cannot swim, Captain Treas disregarded his personal safety and voluntarily risked his life by pro-ceeding immediately to rescue the Korean child. Breaking through the ice, Captain Treas forced his way against the strong current of the turbulent stream, the depth of which often reached his chin. Fending off chunks of ice with sharp and jagged edges, Captain Treas reached the child at mid stream and carried him back to safety, aided by Sergeant First Class Kim, Myung Keun, a Korean Soldier assigned to Detachment Center, U.S. Army Advisory Group, Korea, who had likewise risked his life by following Captain Treas into the stream in this rescue effort. Upon reaching the banks, Captain Treas delivered the near frozen boy to a Korean National Policeman for immediate evacuation to the nearest hospital for urgently required medical care. Through this act of heroism, Captain Treas reflected great credit upon himself and the United States Army Advisory Group, Korea, and the United States Army.

IX--SOLDIER'S MEDAL. By direction of the President, under the provisions of the Act of Congress approved 2 July 1926, a Soldier's Medal for heroism not involving actual conflict with an enemy is awarded to:

Sergeant First Class Kim Myhung Keun, , Republic of Korea Army Soldier, assigned to and serving with Detachment Center, United States Army Military Advisory Group, Korea, did, at about 1530 hours on 20 December 1966, in Chun Chon, Korea, distinguish himself through an act of heroism by volun-tarily risking his life to assist in rescuing a nine years old Korean boy from drowning in the ice swollen, turbulent So Yang River. While crossing the So Yang river bridge at the northern edge of the city of Chun Chon, in the com-pany of Captain Richard L. Treas, United States Army, he noticed an exciting crowd of people gathering along the bank of the river on the south side of the bridge. Closer observation revealed the object of excitement to be a small Korean boy who had broken through the ice incrustation and fallen into the river, clinging desperately to a chunk of floating ice. Not knowing the thickness of the ice or the depth of the river, SFC Kim, along with Captain Treas, disre-garded his personal safety and voluntarily risked his life by proceeding im-mediately to rescue the Korean lad. Breaking the ice and being plunged into the river himself, Sergeant Kim forced his way against the strong current of the turbulent stream, wading and swimming as the depth of the river changed, breaking the ice with his fists ahead of him and fending off chunks of ice with sharp and jagged edges finally he reached the child at near midstream. Sergeant Kim and Captain Treas then forced their way back to shore, carrying the near frozen lad to safety. Once again on shore, the lad was handed over to a Korean National policeman for immediate evacuation to the nearest hospital for urgently required medical care. Through this act of heroism, Sergeant Kim reflected much credit upon himself, the United States Army Advisory Group, Korea, and the Republic of Korea Army.

X--BRONZE STAR MEDAL. 1. By direction of the President, under the provisions of Executive Order 11046, 24 August 1962, a Bronze Star Medal with "V" device for heroism in connection with military operations against hostile forces is awarded to:

Sergeant Robert W. Hawkins, , United States Army, Company A, 1st Battalion, 38th Infantry, 2d Infantry Division, displayed heroic action during operations against a ground enemy on 5 April 1967, at Guard Post 566, Vicinity Taesong-Dong in the Demilitarized Zone of Korea. While in the process of improving defensive positions on the guard post perimeter, Sergeant Hawkins and two members of his squad were attacked by an enemy force of squad or larger size which had moved south of the Military Demarcation Line (MDL). Sergeant Hawkins immediately ordered his men into firing position and directed their fire against the hostile force killing the three enemy who had penetrated the MDL. Sergeant Hawkins and elements of his squad were pinned down by intense enemy automatic weapons fire from a woodline north of the MDL. Acting with keen foresight and judgment, Sergeant Hawkins ordered a fire team to establish a base of fire to cover the withdrawal of himself and other personnel who had been pinned down. Sergeant Hawkins then moved his two squad members by fire and maneuver to a more advantageous position to a trenchline on the Guard Post. Sergeant Hawkins then rallied his squad and directed their fire upon the hostile force, thus rendering the enemy ineffective and causing the remaining enemy to withdraw in wild disorder. Sergeant Hawkins' professional and inspiring leadership resulted in killing at least three of the enemy and a routing of the hostile force without loss of injury to his squad. His gallantry and heroism while under fire reflect great credit upon himself and his unit. His actions were in the highest tradition of the United States Army.

2. By direction of the President, under the provisions of Executive Order 11046, 24 August 1962, a Bronze Star Medal (First Oak Leaf Cluster) with "V" device for heroism in connection with military operations against hostile forces is awarded to:

Captain Jack M. Mays, , Infantry, United States Army, distinguished himself by heroic acts on 25 August 1963. Captain Mays took a small combat patrol into an enemy controlled area, surprised the enemy in their houses and assaulted the village inflicting costly losses on the enemy. During a counter-attack which followed the assault, he moved about the area organizing the defenses with complete disregard for his personal safety and the enemy fires. The great success of this action contributed immeasurably to clearing the enemy controlled area and had a direct bearing on gains made during following operations. The outstanding accomplishments of Captain Mays were exceptionally meritorious and reflect great credit upon himself, his unit, and the United States Army.

XI--BRONZE STAR MEDAL. By direction of the President, under the provisions of Executive Order 11046, 24 August 1962, a Bronze Star Medal for meritorious service in connection with military operations against hostile forces is awarded to:

Petty Officer First Class Paul R. Bohn, , United States Navy, on 22 December 1966, distinguished himself in aerial flight in the vicinity of Vi Thanh, Republic of Vietnam. Petty Officer Bohn was flying as crew chief and gunner of an armed helicopter as it gave aerial support to a friendly outpost being attacked and under heavy enemy fire. As his armed helicopter continually made low level passes over the enemy, Petty Officer Bohn disregarded his own personal safety and with calm accuracy, fired his hand held machine gun into the enemy positions dug in below. Constantly exposing himself to the intense enemy fire by leaning out of the door of the aircraft in order to fire in front of and behind the helicopter, Petty Officer Bohn protected the aircraft from the hostile fire after a target run had been made. Petty Officer Bohn detected and marked with smoke the active enemy emplacements below as the aircraft flew at tree top level. Petty Officer Bohn's brave actions contributed significantly to the great accomplishments of the armed platoon which inflicted heavy casualties on a Viet Cong Battalion, disorganizing and routing them from their emplacements around the outpost. Petty Officer Bohn's actions were in the highest traditions of the military service and reflect great credit upon himself, his unit, and the United States Navy.

Staff Sergeant James D. Campbell, , United States Air Force, who distinguished himself by heroism involving voluntary risk of life in the vicinity of Nui Dang Outpost, Quang Ngai Province, Republic of Vietnam, on 30 December 1966. On that date an American advisor with the 1st Battalion, 4th ARVN Regiment had been seriously wounded by enemy fire, and a helicopter was requested to medevac him to the nearest medical facility. Knowing that this mission would be extremely hazardous and that undoubtedly he would be subjected to enemy fire, Sergeant Campbell volunteered to accompany the medevac helicopter. While under intense hostile small arms and automatic weapons fire during this mission, he demonstrated outstanding courage by exposing himself to assist in loading the wounded man aboard the aircraft. By his heroic action and humanitarian regard for his fellow man, Sergeant Campbell reflected great credit upon himself and the United States Air Force.

Petty Officer Third Class Stephen E. Perry, , United States Navy on 22 December 1966 distinguished himself in aerial flight in the vicinity of Vi Thanh, Republic of Vietnam. Petty Officer Perry was flying as door gunner of an armed helicopter as it gave aerial support to a friendly outpost being attacked and under heavy enemy fire. As his armed helicopter continually made low level passes over the enemy, Petty Officer Perry disregarded his own personal safety and with calm accuracy, fired his hand held machine gun into the enemy positions dug in below. Constantly exposing himself to the intense enemy fire by leaning out of the aircraft in order to fire in front of and behind the helicopter. Petty Officer Perry protected the aircraft from the hostile fire after a target run had been made. Petty Officer Perry detected and marked with smoke the active enemy emplacements below as the aircraft flew at tree top level. Petty Officer Perry's brave actions contributed significantly to the great accomplishments of the armed platoon which inflicted heavy casualties on a Viet Cong Battalion, disorganizing and routing them from their emplacements around the outpost. Petty Officer Perry's actions were in the highest traditions of the military service and reflect great credit upon himself, his unit, and the United States Navy.

2. By direction of the President, under the provisions of Executive Order 9158, 11 May 1942, as amended by Executive Order 9242-A, 11 September 1942, an Air Medal (First Oak Leaf Cluster) with "V" device for heroism while participating in aerial flight is awarded by the Department of the Army to:

Lieutenant (JG) Kenneth Lund, , United States Navy, who distinguished himself in aerial flight in the vicinity of Vi Thanh, Republic of Vietnam, on 22 December 1966. Lieutenant Lund was flying as pilot with an armed helicopter platoon during attacks made on a Viet Cong Battalion as they held friendly ground forces pinned down inside an outpost with heavy fire. Lieutenant Lund disregarded his own personal safety by continually making low level passes directly over the Viet Cong emplacements in order to deliver accurate machine gun and rocket fire on the enemy. As air strikes were called in on the Viet Cong, Lieutenant Lund continued to give close support by flying dangerously close to the incoming airstrikes, and over the outpost which was receiving enemy mortar air burst. By continually exposing himself to heavy enemy fire in order to support the outpost, Lieutenant Lund's brave actions contributed significantly to the accomplishments of the armed platoon, which inflicted heavy casualties on a Viet Cong Battalion, disorganizing them and routing them from their emplacements around the outpost. Lieutenant Lund's brave actions were in the highest traditions of the military service and reflect great credit upon himself, his unit, and the United States Navy.

Captain Jack E. O'Donnell, , United States Air Force, who distinguished himself by heroic action on 11 September 1966 while participating in aerial flight in the Republic of Vietnam. Captain O'Donnell was serving as aircrew member of a CV-2B (CARIBOU) aircraft which was participating in a hazardous emergency mission carrying reinforcements to the special forces camp at Ha Thanh. The camp had been under attack by the Viet Cong since the evening of 10 September and was in grave need of reinforcements. Captain O'Donnell volunteered to fly the mission knowing that previous resupply missions flown that day had received intense ground fire with two aircraft receiving damage. The mission was completed at night under minimum weather conditions and in mountainous terrain. The landing had to be made with the aid of flareships, mortar flares, and smudge pots as improvised lighting. Enemy forces overlooking the airstrip directed intense automatic weapons fire on Captain O'Donnell's aircraft during landing and take off. Captain O'Donnell's bravery under the intense ground fire resulted in the successful completion of the mission and prevented the loss of the vital outpost to the enemy. Captain O'Donnell's actions were in keeping with the highest traditions of the United States Air Force and reflects great credit upon himself and the military service.

Lieutenant Junior Grade Michael J. Peters, , United States Navy, on 22 December 1966 distinguished himself in aerial flight in the vicinity of Vi Thanh, Republic of Vietnam. Lieutenant Peters was flying as pilot with an armed helicopter platoon during attacks made on a Viet Cong Battalion as they held friendly ground forces pinned down inside an outpost with heavy fire. Lieutenant Peters disregarded his own personal safety by continually making low level passes directly over the Viet Cong emplacements in order to deliver accurate machine gun and rocket fire on the enemy. As air strikes were called in on the Viet Cong, Lieutenant Peters continued to give close support by flying dangerously close to the incoming airstrikes, and over the outpost which was receiving enemy mortar air bursts. By continually exposing himself to heavy enemy fire in order to support the outpost, Lieutenant Peters' brave actions contributed significantly to the accomplishments of the armed platoon, which inflicted heavy casualties on a Viet Cong Battalion, disorganizing them and routing them from their emplacements around the outpost. Lieutenant Peters' brave actions were in the highest traditions of the military service and reflect great credit upon himself, his unit, and the United States Navy.

As a member of the United States Army Force deployed to rescue beleaguered United States Nationals who were being held as hostages, Sergeant Taghan volunteered to accompany the force commander on the initial reconnaissance and contact with leaders of the hostile Dominican armed groups. Performing coolly and courageously and displaying uncommon initiative, Sergeant Taghan covered the commander during his approach to contact and, while under sporadic small arms fire, stopped, searched, and cleared a vehicle suspected of containing arms, ammunition, and personnel.
